

Updating your class dates

The Fertility Collective — a 2-minute task, no website knowledge needed

Your class dates live in one Google Sheet. Whenever you change a date there, your website updates by itself — usually within a few minutes. You only ever touch the spreadsheet; you never have to open the website's code.

How the sheet is laid out

There are two columns. The left column is the Fertility & Wellness series (Wednesdays). The right column is the Pregnancy series (Thursdays). Each row underneath the headings is one 3-week session — type the dates however you'd like them to appear on the site.

Fertility & Wellness	Pregnancy
Sep 9 · 16 · 23	Sep 10 · 17 · 24
Oct 7 · 14 · 21	Oct 8 · 15 · 22
Nov 4 · 11 · 18	Nov 5 · 12 · 19

· To add a session, type into the next empty row. · To remove one, delete that row's text. · A blank cell simply shows nothing — that's fine.

To change the dates

- Open the Google Sheet (bookmark it, or ask Cameron for the link).
- Click a cell and type the new dates, just like editing any spreadsheet.
- That's it — press Enter. There is nothing to save or publish.
- Wait a few minutes, then refresh the website to see the change.

A few good-to-knows

- Only edit the dates inside the cells. Don't rename the two headings or move the columns around.
- If the sheet is ever empty, the website quietly keeps showing the last dates that were built into it — nothing will look broken.
- Changes can take a few minutes to appear because Google refreshes the published copy on its own schedule.

Stuck? Text Cameron and he can sort it out in a minute. Nothing you type in the sheet can break the website.
